

BOLDLY GROWN FARM

BOW, WA

When farmers Amy and Jacob first arrived in Western Washington’s Skagit Valley, they found affordable farmland hard to come by. Local farm incubator Viva Farms made it possible for the pair to grow their operation before realizing their dream and purchasing land of their own in 2021. “We don’t farm by ourselves,” Jacob explains. “Everyone has to support their neighbors in farming.” As Puget Sound Food Hub Cooperative's board president, Jacob puts this perspective into practice by helping farmers across the region work together to bring fresh, healthy food to their local communities. Meanwhile, Boldly Grown continues to thrive, harvesting specialty varieties of squash, greens, roots, and more all twelve months of the year.

