

AMALTHEIA PRODUCE

BELGRADE, MT

You might know Amaltheia best for their award-winning goat cheese—but farmer Nate took notice when the dairy's compost customers remarked on how great their gardens were growing. This turned out to be the motivating factor for him to try his hand at vegetable farming. Seems those compost customers were onto something... The operation quickly grew as Nate scaled up from selling his eye-popping produce at farmers markets to local wholesalers like the community food co-op in Bozeman and Root Cellar Foods. Since 2016, he's been managing a crew that tends to nine thriving acres of Certified Organic greens, roots, peppers, herbs, and more.
