

CONSERVATION GRAINS

CHOTEAU, MT

“I want people to experience whole-grain bread and realize how good it is, how much flavor it has.” Judy Cornell, founder of Conservation Grains, believes in producing the best grains possible for your health and for really great flavor. “The idea was always to find alternatives to commodity agriculture,” she says. That’s why her operation mills only 100% whole grain, stone ground flours and sourced from Montana family farms to create blends with a taste that you won’t find anywhere else. Conservation Grains is committed to regenerative agriculture, working only with producers whose care for the soil results in better-tasting, more nutritious wheat.

